

Dairy Conference

‘Keeping your Dairy Herd Healthy’

Thursday, 23rd October 2014

Corrin Mart, Fermoy, Co. Cork

Registration: 9.30am

Healthy cows produce more milk and are more profitable. Productive cows are needed to exploit the opportunities to increase milk production in a post-quota world. Profitable cows safeguard the farm business through times of milk price fluctuation.

A conference focusing on keeping the dairy herd healthy is being organised by Animal Health Ireland in conjunction with the Irish Farmers' Journal, Teagasc and Veterinary Ireland. This one day conference is called 'Keeping your Dairy Herd Healthy'.

Topics covered at the event will include:

CellCheck & Mastitis Control
High SCC Cows - cull or cure? Frank O'Sullivan, Veterinary Practitioner, Meath	Practical steps to drying off in preparation for Spring 2015 Don Crowley, Teagasc
Rearing Healthy Heifers
How to feed to reach target weights Emer Kennedy, Teagasc	Rearing Healthy Heifers - My Story Jim White, Dairy Farmer, Tipperary
Lameness
Autumn Management and pre-housing treatments for a 'lameness' free winter Gerard Cusack, Veterinary Practitioner, Kerry
Parasite Control
Reasons why cows cough Donal Murphy, Veterinary Practitioner, Kerry
Biosecurity
Steps to minimise the health risk in an expanding dairy herd Riona Sayers, Teagasc
Genetics
Current research on the role of genetics in herd health Donagh Berry, Teagasc
