

O'Halleran's Family Farm

Producers and packers of our own
Free Range Eggs

Some pictures of our farm

Our Free Range Eggs are produced on our family farm in Kenagh, Co. Longford by birds given access to pasturand, shelter and warmth. Our birds are allowed to roam free during daylight hours and are fed a balanced vegetarian diet.

Back in 2003 I happened to be glancing through the local paper when I spotted an advert looking for people in Co. Longford who produced food to attend a meeting in the Local Enterprise Board offices with a view to setting up a Farmers Market in Longford town. Having attended several meetings & speculated as to where the time would come from. we eventually began trading when the market opened on the 8th May 2004

Our stall has not missed a market since (except Friday 23rd February, 2018 when the Beast from the East hit Ireland)

Our packaging

O'Halleran's Family Farm

Look out for these packs all across Co. Longford, Roscommon and Westmeath and you are guaranteed to be purchasing a top quality fresh local product.

Our eggs reach the shop shelf within 24 hours of being laid.

We are fully registered with the Department of Agriculture to both produce and pack our own Free Range eggs.

Our production units are also full members of the Bord Bia Sustainable Egg Assurance Scheme (SEAS).

Our little self service shed located on the farm where the general public come to purchase our Free Range Eggs.

We set up this service about 15 years ago. It has grown tenfold since then. We currently would have an average of 25 customers per day calling for their free range eggs.

Nothing like a good scratch around!
